PRESIDENT UPHELD

Tumultuous Scenes On the Floor of the United States Senate When Gore Resolution Was Tabled.

Washington, March 4.—By a vote of 48 to 14, the Senate yesterday carried out President Wilson's wish and killed Senator Gore's resolution to warn Americans to keep off armed belligerent ships. In a turbulent scene, such as is seldom witnessed in the Senate, the vote proceeded, with Senators shouting objections, futilely demanding recognition to explain their positions and making hot retorts to each other, all of which were out of order.

At one time so many Senators were shouting for the Vice President's recognition that the sergeant-at-arms was called to restore quiet.

After having maneuvered for two days to get the resolution in such parliamentary position that it was disposed without debate, the Senate then proceeded to a general discussion of the subject which continued all afternoon to the dismay of administration supporters. There were free expressions of opinion that the Senate's action, because the vote actually was taken on a motion to table the Gore resolution with a correction by the author and a substitute by Senator McCumber, was in effect a "Scotch verdict," and had not actually accomplished the purpose of the President.

PLEASE RETURN SEALS.

Many of the Red Cross seals which were taken out about Christmas time, have never been returned, nor the money turned in to the Health League, under whose supervision the sale of the seals was conducted. It is the request of the managers of the Health League department that a settlement be made as soon as possible by those who have not done so.

WANTS AN ASPHALT STREET

W. D. Cochran Gives His Reasons Therefore After Studying the Matter Closely.

Editor Public Ledger:

Because of the fact that I live and expect to spend the balance of my days on East Second street, in the Sixth ward of Maysville, I am deeply interested in the proposed improvement of that street, and want to see that character of street constructed which will add most to the general appearance of the street, contribute most to the comfort and pleasure of those residing upon it, give a durable street, economical to repair, and at the same time, so far as cost is concerned, not add substantially to the expense.

Because of my interest in this improvement, I appeared before the City Council about a month ago with a petition asking that an asphalt street be constructed from Union street east to Carmel street. Council upon that occasion changed the specifications from brick to asphalt. I understand there is considerable agitation now that this street be constructed of brick.

An improvement of this character should be considered from all the view points suggested above. In point of beauty, general attractiveness and effect, cleanliness and freedom from noise, a brick street is not to be compared with an asphalt street. Every one at all familiar with both will readily admit the superiority of asphalt over brick, and it is more economical to repair.

This being true, a comparison should be made as to cost and durability. In the city of Lexington an asphalt street, using the same character of foundation, costs about 25 cents less a square yard than brick. Proximity to Portsmouth, O., might not make the cost less here.

As to durability, and I understand it is the point mainly advanced why a brick street alone should be constructed, an investigation of the subject will disclose that there are asphalt streets all over this country of from twenty to thirty years standing, still in good serviceable condition. Comparisons, of course, can be made with streets improperly constructed to the disadvantage of the material in the improperly constructed street, but the street I am making an effort to obtain is to be of Trinidad street asphalt, with concrete foundation. An improperly constructed brick street would fail in durability as well as any other.

Knowing that at some time the improvement of this street was to be undertaken, I have observed closely the character of the streets elsewhere. Last summer I was in a number of the larger cities and towns of the north and east, and in Canada, all having the appearance of being managed in a most competent and efficient manner, and I saw miles upon miles of asphalt streets. I do not recall having seen a brick street, unless it may have been in some part of a city or town where the property was the least valuable. If an asphalt street is not a serviceable street, and more economical than any other to repair when necessary, why is it that this material is used to such an extent in other places?

The travel on East Second street is insignificant, as compared with that on most all of the asphalt streets I have seen. I have also taken occasion to consult with those living in towns having both asphalt and brick streets as to which character of street was the most desirable, and in every instance the advice given was by all means to obtain the asphalt street if possible.

Wanting the best that can be obtained for the section of the town in which I live is the only reason that I have made an effort in this matter. I know from what I have seen and heard that if East Second street is constructed of asphalt instead of brick, every person who owns a foot of ground abutting upon that street will, when it is completed and in use, be greatly pleased, and all will agree that East Second street is to be congratulated because of the effort made to obtain asphalt instead of brick.

Very truly yours,
W. D. COCHRAN.

BABY WEEK

All America Joins In Campaign To Save the Babies—Much Interest Being Manifested Here.

Every organization that is working for the benefit of the American people has joined in the nation-wide campaign to conserve the greatest of our resources, the human child. Beginning today Baby is King for a full week. All of the pitfalls that menace him as he comes into the world will have to bear the searching light of publicity, so that the mothers may realize their responsibilities and the American public may know the awful waste of life that is going on in this country.

The forces of education, surgery and medicine, sanitation, and civic uplift have joined with the women's clubs, business organization, the municipal health department, the health boards of the various states, and the federal bureaus in the great campaign which gets under way today.

Statistics furnished by the federal Census Bureau show that 300,000 infants died during 1915 in the United States before reaching 12 months of age. This death rate is figured at 124 in a thousand. It is claimed by the experts on babies that this rate is fully double what it should be. To illustrate their claim, they point to London, where, despite the unsanitary conditions in the poorer quarters, the infant death rate reaches barely over a thousand. In typical Norwegian and Swedish cities it has dropped to 80 per thousand, and in New Zealand the rate is as low as 50 per thousand. In Vienna and Berlin the infant death-rate runs high, at 160 per thousand, and in Petrograd and Moscow it reaches 280.

The American people have been aware of a high infant mortality in this country but the cause was laid to the crowding in cities and the influx of immigrants. This theory has been shattered through an investigation conducted in New York, which showed that where the immigrants were the thickest the death-rate of babies was lower than among the native American parents under better conditions.

The saving of a baby's life is only one of the aspects of the big campaign known as Baby Week. It is aimed to give baby a healthy start along life's highway, by keeping him free from disease and injury. To see that the babies are born healthy, to see that they are kept well are measures fully as important as the cutting down of the death-rate.

Baby stations, which have worked out well in many cities, are advocated as a practical solution on each local problem. Over five hundred of these stations were operated during the hot months of last summer. Only a few dozen of these were maintained by municipalities. The infant station saves many lives, and is credited with preventing more diseases than it cures. The staff of the station is made up of nurses, who work in separate districts examining children for signs of chronic disease, seeing that baby is cared for. A physician at the station instructs mothers and examines babies. Pure milk has been dispensed at these stations, as part of the campaign.

That a thousand babies die each day in America, half of whom could be saved by intelligent care and prevention of disease, is the alarming fact that brings together the economic, educational and scientific forces of America for "Baby Week."
